PREFACE

Dear Educator,

A school today, is not just a name or a legacy alone. It is an experience that must meet the many expectations of students and their parents. It is a bit easier to understand what students want and need. However, understanding the present-day parent calls for a shift from the traditional approach; and making a move towards being more open and accessible to them.

There has never been a generation that is more informed and hands-on about their children than this 'millennial' parent generation. They scout for the best school experience, by searching for ratings, reviews, and genuine testimonials. Over our many years of interaction and working with the parent community, we have understood that they are more than happy to commit to a particular school for their child's admission. However, there's a catch. It happens only when the school appeals to them in the language they understand and through platforms they can relate to.

This e-guide will help you speak the present-day parent language in all your communication and outreach efforts. The insights and learnings shared will help you leverage your assets to your advantage. It will help you build your school's brand such that prospective parents can identify the value that your school can add - by way of outcomes that truly matter!

WHO IS THE NEW PARENT GENERATION

Recognizing the new parent generation is easy - think 'Millennial'!

Millennials have been deemed as "young" for so long that it's easy to forget that currently:

34% (440 Million) of India's population falls under the age group of 25 - 40. This is the young parent generation who are sending their children to your school!

WHAT DOES THE MILLENNIAL PARENT LOOK FOR IN SCHOOLS?

1 Holistic Education

'Training Students of Today into Citizens of Tomorrow'

"We are moving from an economy and a society built on the logical, linear, computer-like capabilities of the Information Age to an economy and a society built on the inventive, empathic, big-picture capabilities of what's rising in its place, the Conceptual Age.

The future belongs to a very different kind of person with a very different kind of mind-creators and empathizers, pattern recognizers, and meaning makers."

Daniel Pink

'A Whole New Mind'

(Author of 'Drive - The Surprising Truth About What Motivates Us')

Parents today understand that the education of their children isn't limited to the numbers reflected on their mark sheets. They prefer a holistic education for their children that encourages creativity, innovation, emotional intelligence alongside excellence in academics.

Success Stories

'Journey of a Student'

In December 2021, Parag Agarwal was announced as the CEO of Twitter. Suddenly, everyone wanted to know everything about his career journey.

- ✓ Where did he study?
- ✓ What did he study?
- ✓ How did he reach the topmost position in one of the top tech companies?

The question that grips most parents during school admission is, "What will my child's journey be like from here on?" Stories like Parag's, show parents a glimpse of a possible future for their own child.

It's a Matter of Public Opinion

'What Others Have to Say'

Seeking validation from others before making an important decision is a natural thing. Think of a prospective parent who is yet unsure about considering your school for their child's admission. Being the millennial generation, their first instinct will be to go online and search your school's name.

What they read online about your school, the Google reviews and ratings will be the deciding factor on whether they will consider your school seriously or not.

The screenshot shows a comparison of two schools based on Google reviews. School A has a 1.5/5 rating from 10 votes, with a negative review stating "Teachers are harassed and students don't do well." School B has a 5/5 rating from 80 votes, with a positive review stating "The environment and teachers are everything! I had my best years here!". The question "Which School would a parent choose?" is posed at the bottom.

School	Rating	Number of Votes	Review
School A	1.5/5	10 votes	"Teachers are harassed and students don't do well."
School B	5/5	80 votes	"The environment and teachers are everything! I had my best years here!"

Quality of Teachers

'Finding Miss McDonald'

"I had a teacher at (south London high school) Chestnut Grove, who taught me English. That was Miss McDonald... She got me really into English literature. Like, I've always been obsessed with English and obviously now I write lyrics... She was so cool. So engaging. She really made us care, and we knew that she cared about us."

In a school, students interact with teachers on a daily basis more than any other school staff member. They make the greatest impact on a student's holistic educational development. Teachers are also the first point of contact for parents for anything related to their child's education.

What parents look for in their children's teachers

- ✓ Qualification & Experience
- ✓ Special training in education, child psychology, cognitive and behavioural science, etc.
- ✓ Versatility in teaching methods
- ✓ Adaptability towards new-age learning

5 Digital School Experience

In the past decade, technology has brought in a paradigm shift in the education industry. Every aspect of a school's interaction with students and their parents as well as the teaching and learning process has gone digital. From filing documents during admission to fee payment, eLearning to virtual classrooms; parents today prefer having a digital solution for everything.

Why? Convenience!

Today, parents look for schools that use technology to make their interactions easy and hassle-free.

Digital Learning Solutions That Parents Want

- ✓ E-learning
- ✓ Videos & Podcasts
- ✓ Game-based Learning
- ✓ Virtual Classrooms
- ✓ Digital Mentoring & Career Guidance Sessions

Digital School Experiences That Parents Want

- ✓ Online Admission & Fee Payment
- ✓ Virtual Parent-Teacher Interaction
- ✓ Mobile-Friendly ERP System for Information Updates
- ✓ Virtual Webinars & Workshops
- ✓ Virtual Campus Tours

Admission & Fee Structure

The fee structure has always been a deciding factor in parents' choice of school for their child's admission. While going through prospective schools parents have on their list, they have a fair idea of the expenses they can afford. Therefore, while discussing the admission process and fee structure with parents it is important to justify the numbers printed on your school brochure.

What Justifies Your School's Fee Structure in Parents' Eyes?

Transparency

Parents are more likely to agree to a higher amount if you discuss the programs your school offers and help them understand its benefits before admission than introducing such programs post-admission.

Real Outcomes as Your Marketing Message

Parents looking for a school for their child's admission are not just buying a product or a service – they are investing in their child's future. If you can show parents a glimpse of their child's future through your student and alumni success stories – that is all that's needed to justify the fee in parents' eyes.

Scholarships

Scholarship is usually discussed as a tool to empower the underprivileged. It is true. However, it is also a marker of merit and achievement. In a society that thrives on meritocracy, providing students with scholarships is as much a reward and recognition of their child's talent in the eye of parents as it is a tool for affordability.

HOW CAN YOUR SCHOOL SPEAK THE PARENT LANGUAGE?

Recognize
Your Strongest
Advocates

Identify the Right Channels of Communication

Communicate
the Right Message

Recognizing Your Strongest Advocates

Every organization has its group of loyal advocates whose voices ring louder in the crowd. For your school, these are the voices of your current students, their parents, teachers, and alumni.

Students

Their achievements highlight the quality of education offered by your school currently

Parents

Their words of approval build a sense of trust among prospective parents

Teaching & Non-teaching Staff

Their training & actions communicate your school's values

Alumni

Their success journeys help in building your school's brand

If you want to build your school's brand, you need to engage and leverage the power of your in-house influencers.

Identifying the Right Channels of Communication

In a post-globalized, social media-driven world of today, how people consume and communicate information has expanded exponentially. To engage with millennial parents, your school needs to leverage the channels through which parents are get their information from.

Online Channels

School Website

Social Media Accounts

Emails, newsletters, videos, etc.

Offline Channels

Staff members - teachers, admission officers, front-desk executives

Brochures, billboards, advertisements, etc.

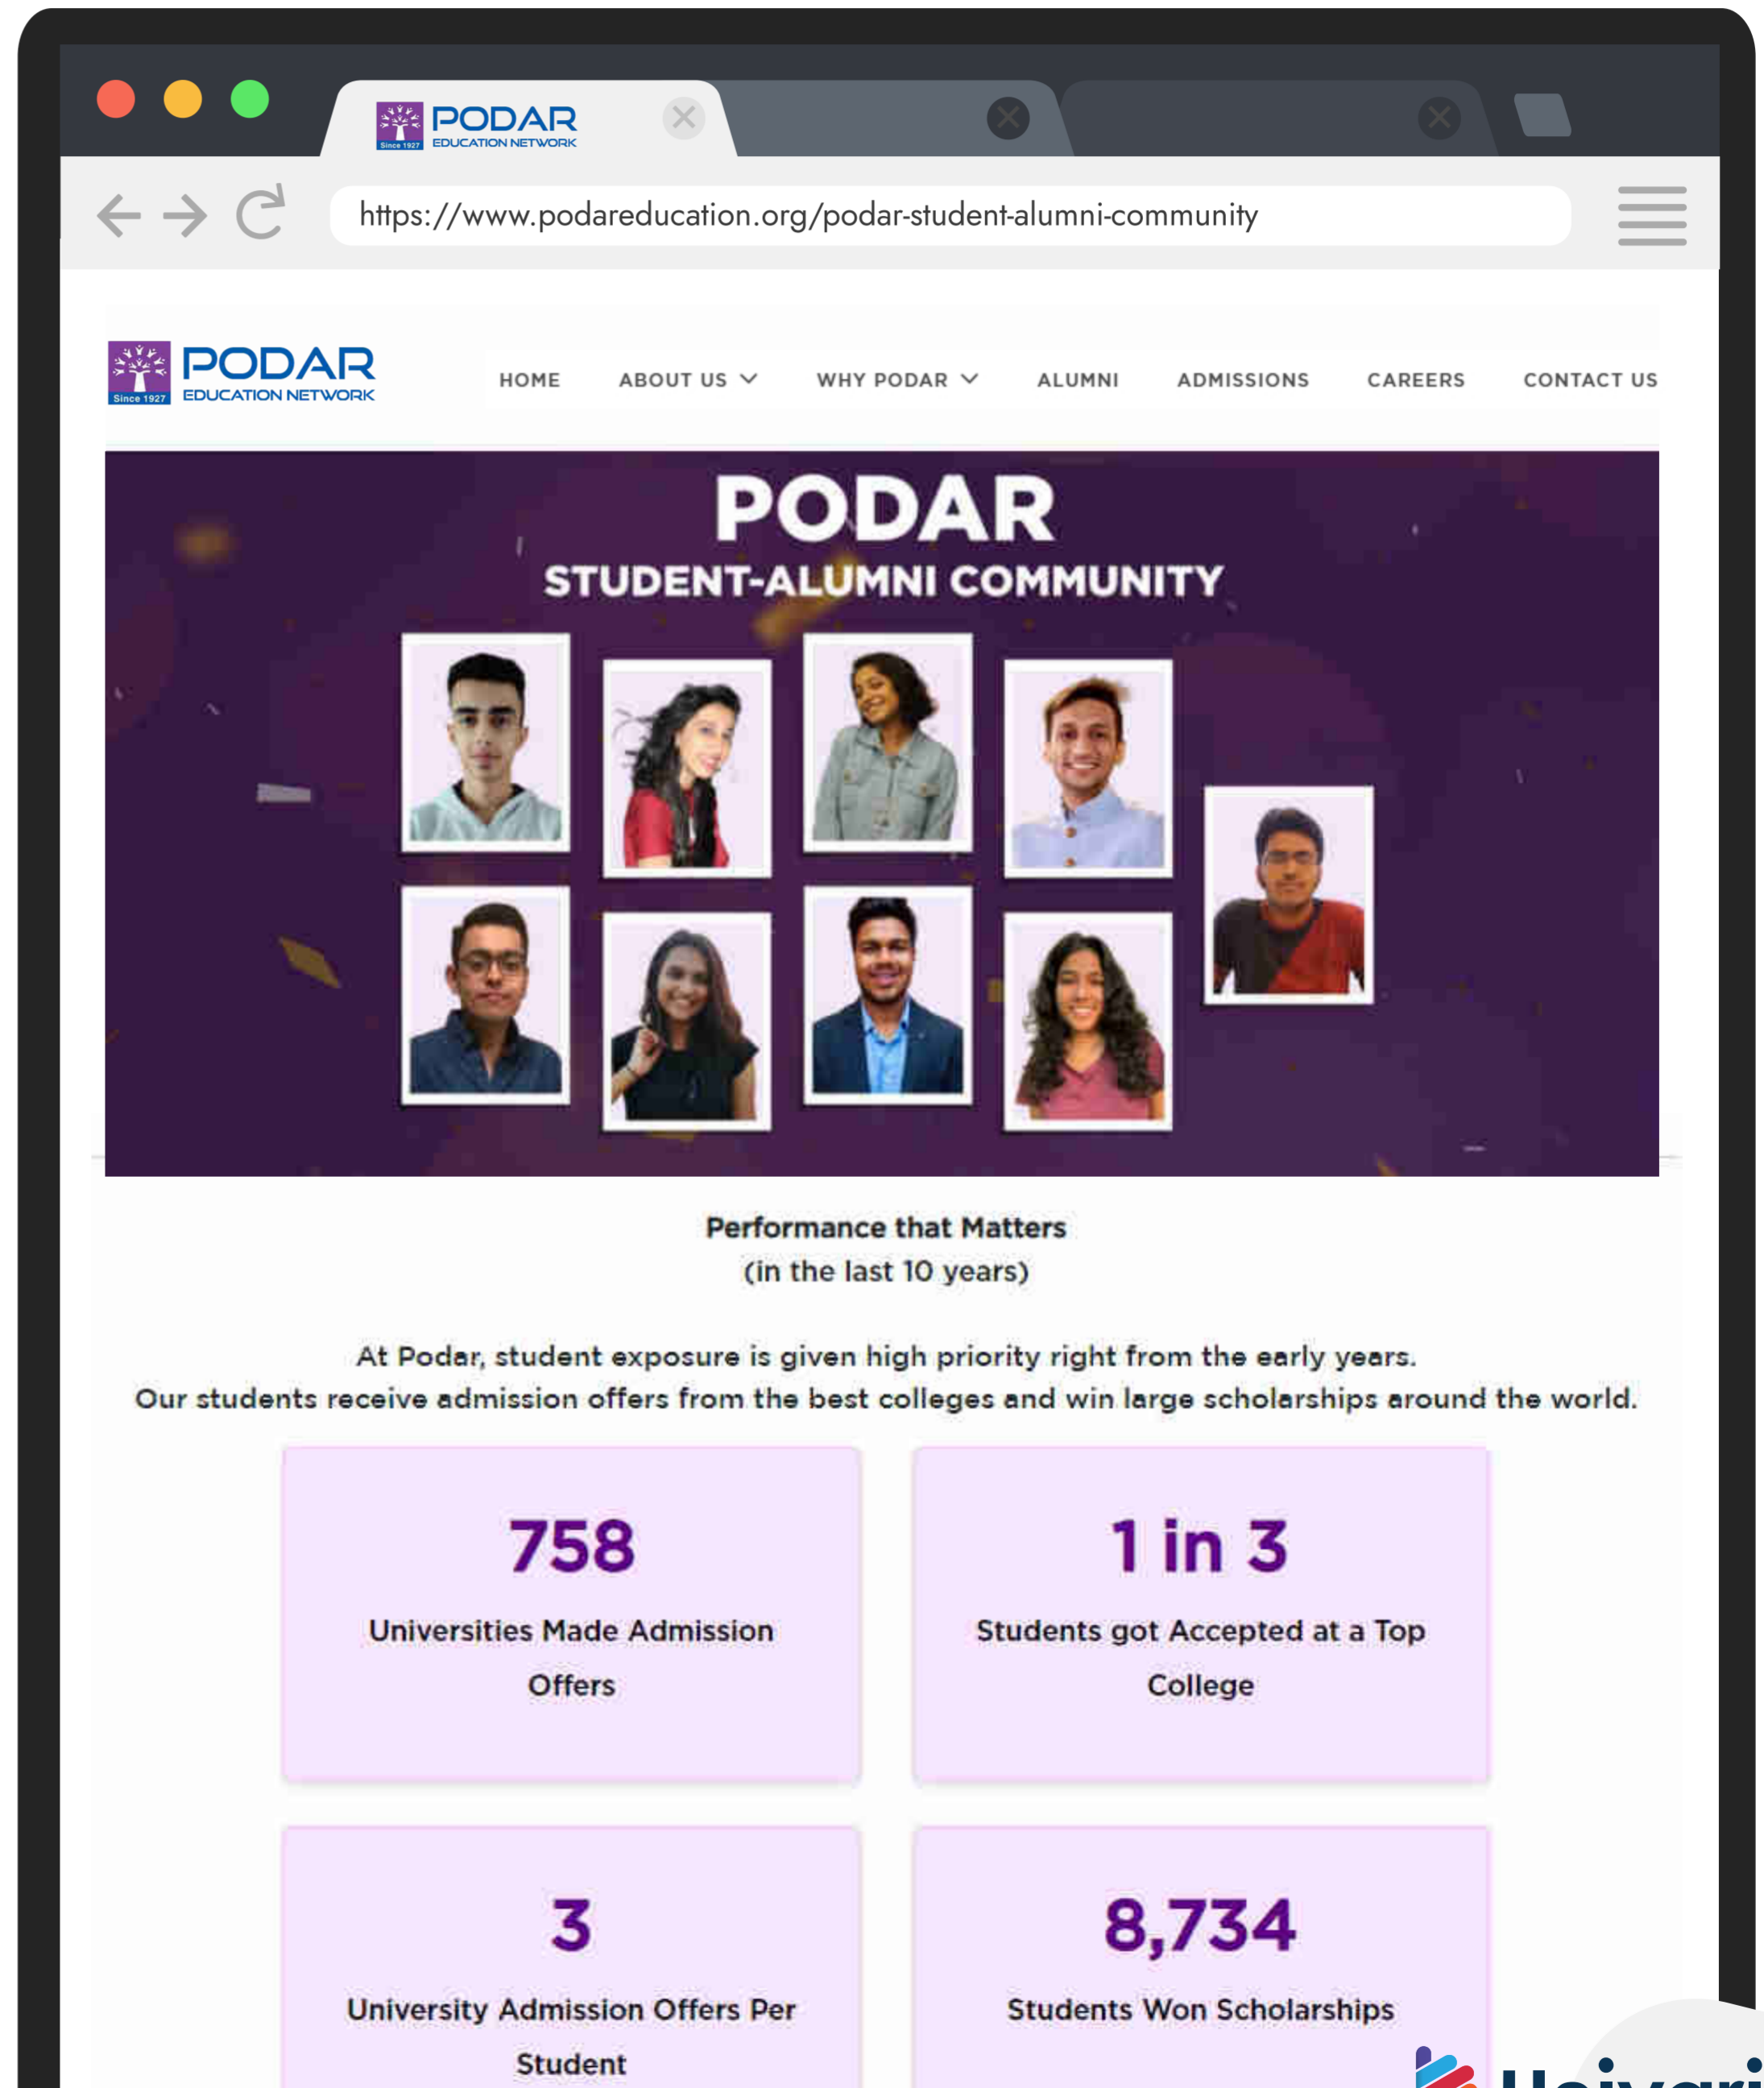

Customized school stationery - notebooks, journals, etc.

2a

Enhance Your School's Website

- ✓ Have an updated, mobile-friendly website that parents can explore
- ✓ Include all admission related information and answers to FAQs by parents
- ✓ Showcase your school's success stories
- ✓ Add sections for each group of advocates - students, parents, teachers, & alumni
- ✓ Include a chat-bot for parents to post their questions

2b

Establish a Strong Social Media Presence

- ✓ Establish your presence in social media channels like Facebook, WhatsApp, Instagram, and YouTube
- ✓ Create community pages on Facebook and groups on WhatsApp where parents can network
- ✓ Upload alumni videos, webinars, and online workshops on social media
- ✓ Promote your school activities through Instagram

2c

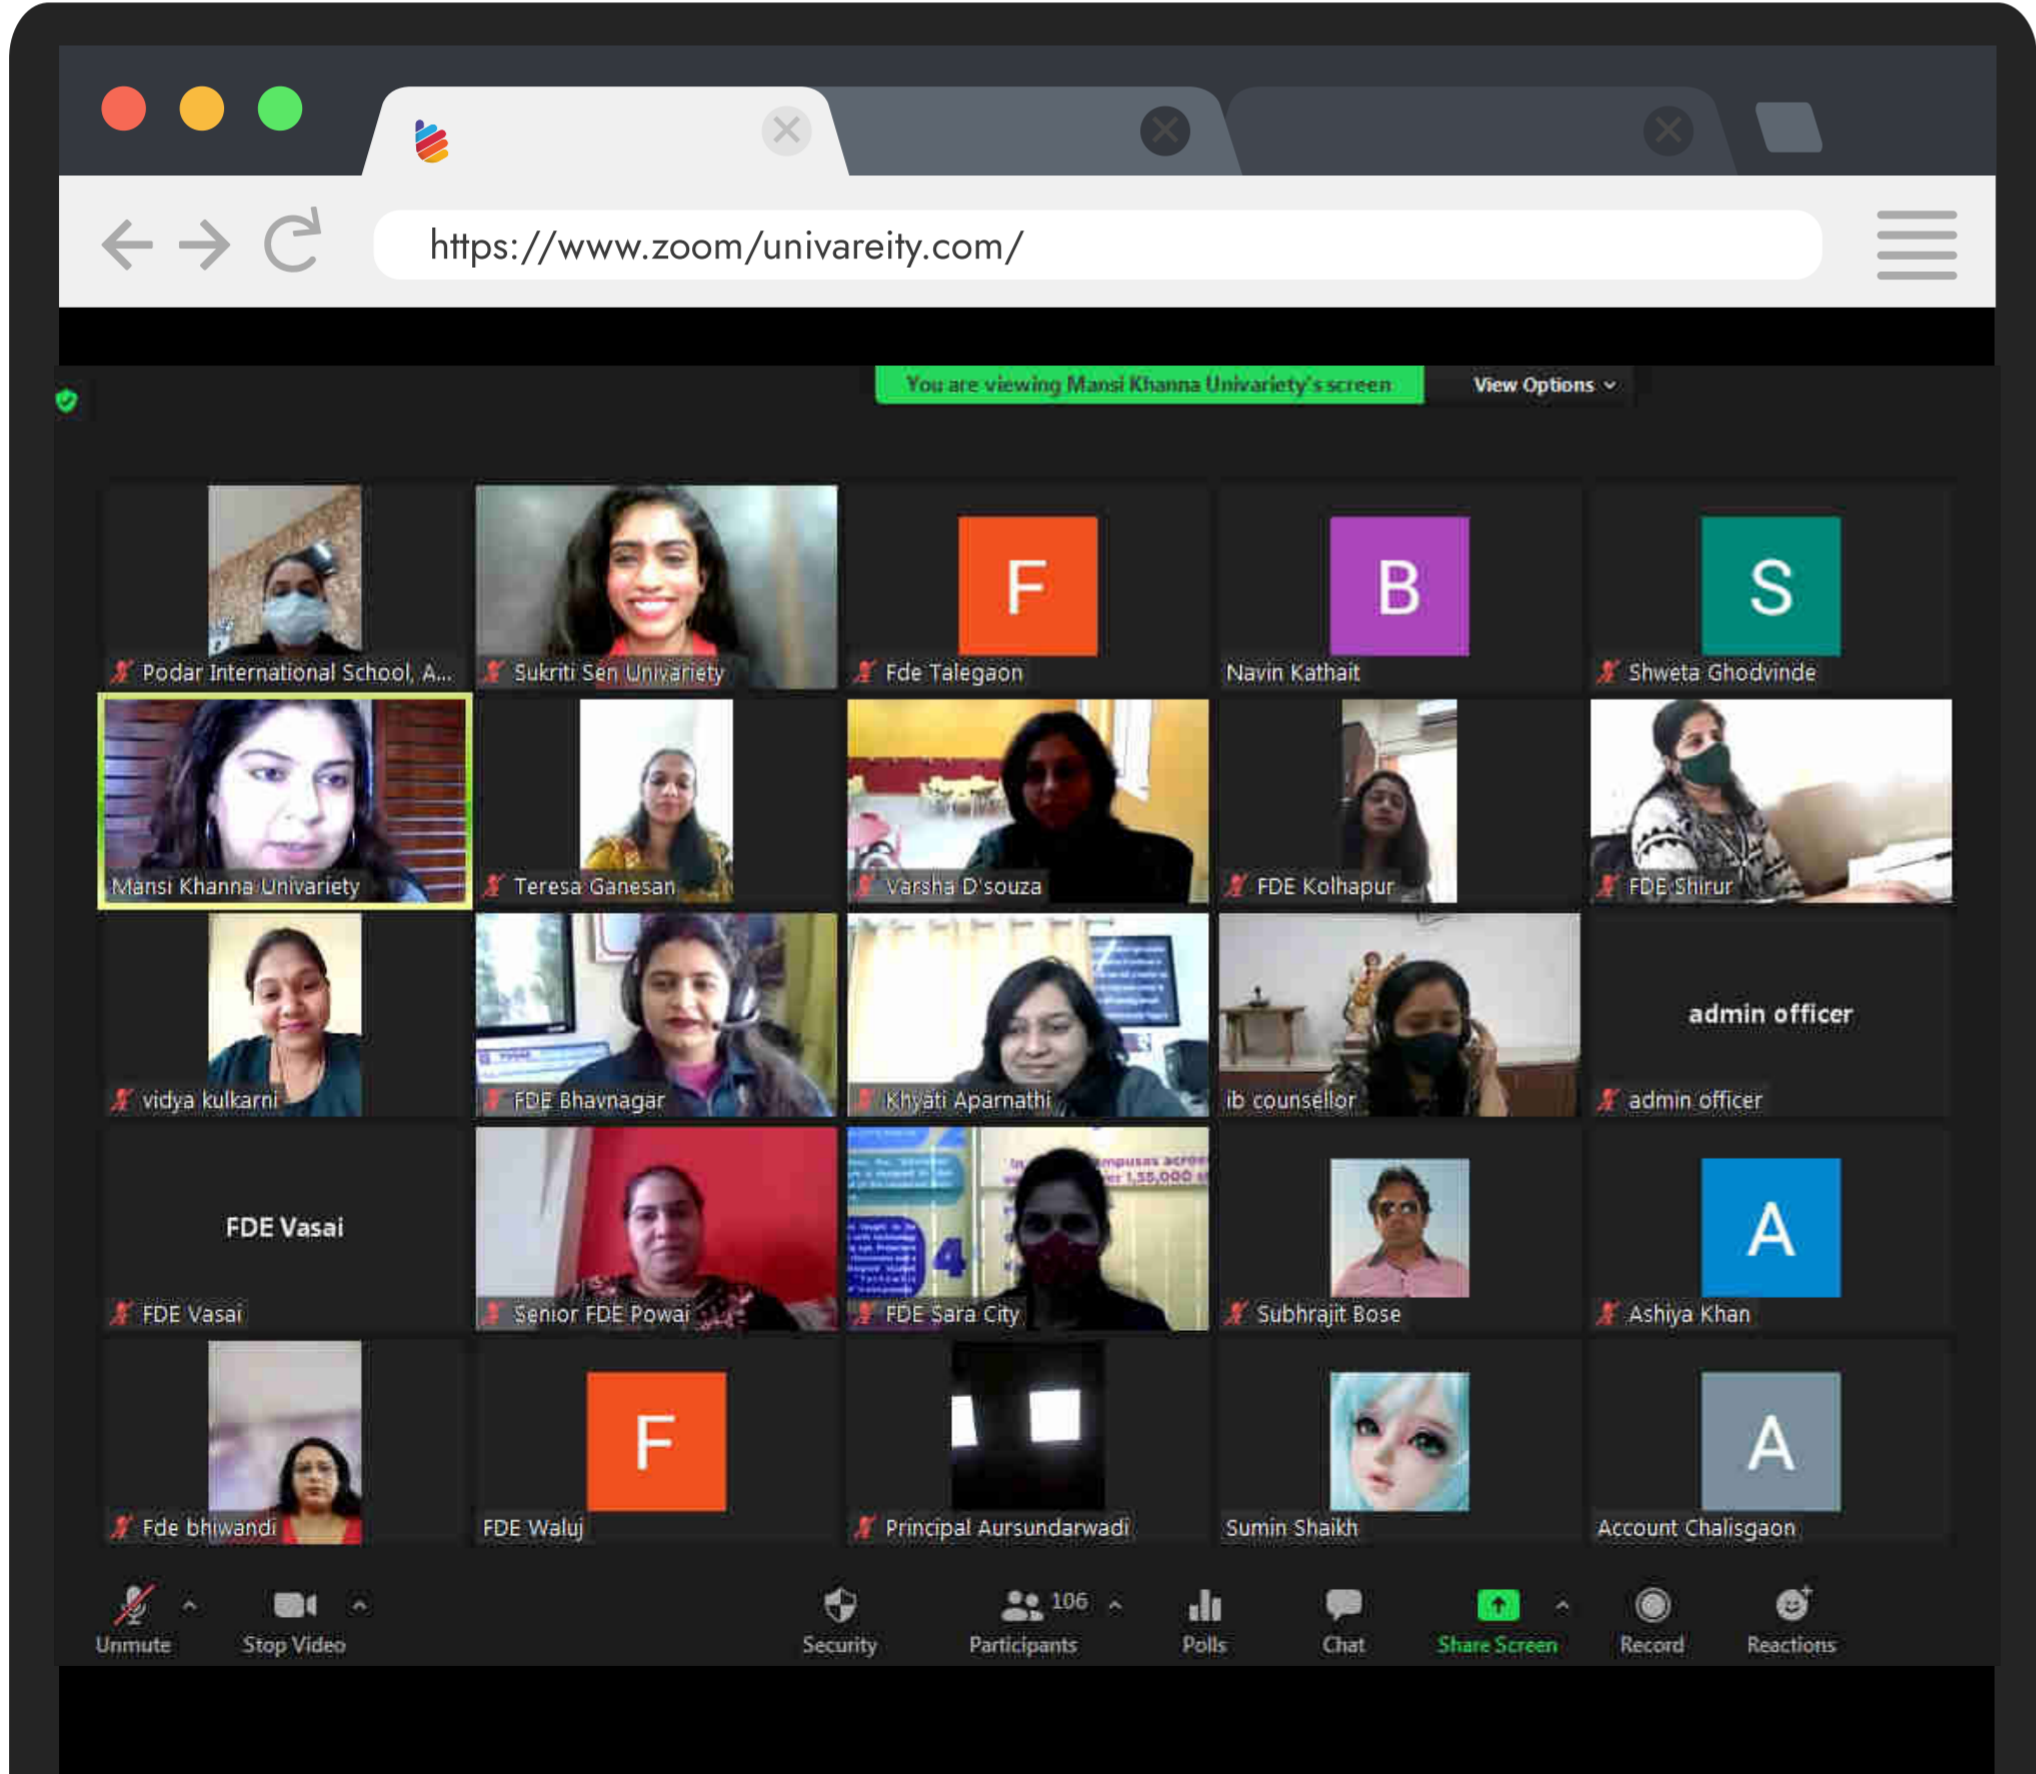

Train Your School Staff (Teaching & Non-Teaching)

- ✓ Train your teachers, admission officers, front desk executives, etc. to effectively communicate your school's success stories during their interaction with parents.

2d

Create a Digital Marketing Funnel

- ✓ Create online ads and brochures for school marketing that highlight outcomes.
- ✓ Use emails for engagement campaigns, send newsletters to keep parents updated about your school's activities & successes.
- ✓ Invest in a system that allows you to track, measure, and analyze your communication with every stakeholder.

Market Your School's Real Success Stories

Most schools take the same route while marketing themselves - advertising the school's building, computer labs, a huge sports ground, a fleet of buses, etc.

The problem with this marketing strategy is that it talks about your school's 'inputs' (what facilities you have to offer) to parents. While highlighting these facilities may look attractive, they don't set your school apart from the rest.

A more impactful and effective marketing strategy focuses on your school's 'outcomes' (how students have benefitted from the facilities you offer).

YOUR SCHOOL'S REAL SUCCESS STORIES ARE YOUR STUDENT SUCCESS STORIES

Your school's Alumni are one of your strongest advocates and perhaps the most under-utilized ones. Their achievements, their career journey, their success stories is tied to your school's success.

So, leverage the power of your alumni and adopt their stories as part of your school marketing plan.

Create Thought Leadership on Holistic Education

A lot of schools throw words like holistic education, new-age learning, adaptive learning, etc. while interacting with prospective parents. Still, they fail to address the primary concern that parents have - How is this going to help their child?

To meet parents' expectations, it is not enough to just say you offer a holistic education plan but show them how it's done. Doing so will not only help you communicate the right message with parents, but will also help you brand yourself as a thought leader.

THE PHILIP EXETER EXAMPLE

Philip Exeter Academy is a prestigious school from New Hampshire that has created ripples in school education through a unique pedagogical style - The Harkness Method. It was developed by Edward Harkness in 1930 with a simple idea that 'Learning should be Democratic'.

Philip Exeter has taken this pedagogical style and integrated it as part of their school's brand.

PHILLIPS EXETER ACADEMY

It's who we are

Harkness exists in every part of life at Exeter, not just academics. The confidence and connections you make at the table — the support you and your peers provide to each other — carry through into social, athletic, artistic and extracurricular pursuits.

“ Our differences are how we express our common humanity. Understanding that — valuing it — is what I think Harkness drives us toward.”

Build Credibility by Sharing Your Students & Parents Experiences

The experiences of your students and parents have the greatest impact on a prospective parent's decision while choosing a school for their child's admission. Sure, parents today can go online and dig-out every tidbit of information about your school. But, if you can share these experiences directly, parents will come to trust your school's brand more.

Sharing your students' and parents' experiences in your school marketing message builds legitimacy in the eyes of prospective parents.
